Africa is not a country! This unique, new picture book opens a small window onto a large world. It shows everyday life in the most varied corners of a vast continent. The images are colorful, calm and trivial, observant, contradictory at times, but always precious and genuine. Swiss born and raised in West Africa, photographer FLURINA ROTHENBERGER (<http://www.flurinarothenberger.ch/>), shows us a reality far from the stereotypes and clichés of Western media coverage. The book's title – I love to dress like I am coming from somewhere and I have a place to go – is a quote from Nigerian student Oyebamire Bola, one of the many people Rothenberger owes this picture book to. HAMMER (<http://www.hammer.to/>), graphic designers Sereina Rothenberger (a sister of Flurina) and David Schatz had access to ten years of the photographer's work from which they culled and edited the images juxtaposed in the book. Enjoy a glimpse at African everyday life on a hot summer day, feel the heat, taste the dust, imagine its scent, the rhythm and the sound.
